A lecture on "Judicial Control' in Al Ain University

The Deanship of Students Affairs at Al Ain University of Science and Technology, based in Al Ain city, organized a lecture entitled "Judicial Control over the Work of the Department in the State of U.A.E." It was provided by the counselor Amneh Said Ali, in the presence of members of the academic and administrative bodies and university students.

She began by defining the administrative judiciary and its important role in the establishment of administrative law, its importance in its oversight work and management actions to ensure respect for the rights and freedoms of individuals and protect them from abuse of power by the administration, and that the law is the basis of everything, as U.A.E. is State law and sovereignty.

She described how the administrative judiciary is an effective tool in addressing management through verification of the legitimacy of its decisions, and the judicial authority to revoke the administrative decision contrary to law, as well as the provision of adequate compensation to persons who have suffered damage as a result of the implementation of those decisions. She has also mentioned the control of the management of the most important types of political control, administrative oversight and judicial control which is the best type of oversight of the work of the department.
